BIG FOUR WRECK.

The Third Disaster of the Month.

Two Passenger Trains Run Into Each Other.

Nine Human Lives are Sacrificed by the Unpardonable Omission of Duty of the Flagman.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Nine persons were killed and twenty injured last night by a fearful rear end collision between two sections of the Big Four train, known as No. 45, near the village of Manteno, a few miles north of Kankakee, on the line of the Illinois Central railway. The following is a list of the dead so far as is known: Jackson, David, Cynthiana, Ohio; Kimmel, Chris, Dayton, Ohio. Seven others are dead, but it is impossible to ascertain their homes at present.

The injured are: Belleson, Blanch, Sinking Springs, Ohio; limbs badly bruised; Blonton, L. H., Cincinnati, fatal; Brown, James W., Wilmington, Ohio, internal and head; Brown, Mrs. James W., internal injuries; Cowells, Anna, Lower Albany, Ind.; Evans, William, Powellton, W. Va., internal injuries; Evans, Mrs. Sallie, Powellton, internal injury; Foster, J. W., Springfield, Ohio, scalp wound and eye gouged; Foster, Mrs. J. W., ribs broken, internal and probably fatal; Gallatin, Mrs. Emma, Columbus, Ohio, back and limbs bruised; Gallatin, Miss E., Columbus, Ohio, limbs bruised; Jackson, Miss Libbie, Cynthiana, Ohio, internal and other injuries, probably fatal; Kimmel, Mrs. Chris, Dayton, Ohio, head and body injured; Means, J. W., Chester, S. C., slightly injured back and head; Morse, Jessie, Cincinnati, badly injured internally; Patton, Olive, Carmel, Ohio, body bruised; Shoeller, Albert Jay, Ripley, Ohio, bad cut face and head, probably fatal; Templeton, Emily, Sinking Springs, Ohio, head and body; Wischart, C. B., Frankfort, Ohio, internal injury; Blaine, William, Indianapolis, Ind., internal injuries and cut around the head and face.

The accident happened in this way: An Illinois Central passenger train had stopped to take water at a tank a quarter of a mile north of Manteno. The first section of train No. 45 came to a stop, but it is said that no flagman was sent back to flag the second section of No. 45. It is a straight track of one or two miles and the flagman had been sent back. The engineer of the second section could not have failed to see him. On the other hand, it is said the engineer of the second train was asleep and that the fireman was throwing coal into the fire box. Both engineer and fireman saw the train ahead of them just in time to jump. They had a narrow escape for their lives. The first section of train No. 45 left Chicago about 8:15 o'clock. It was followed a few minutes later by the second section. There was a "dead" sleeper on the rear end of the first train, or in other words, the car was empty. The car ahead of it was the day coach and contained some forty of fifty passengers. The second section of the train crashed into the "dead" sleeper, driving it forward through the day coach, and it did not stop until it had completely telescoped the car from end to end. The wreck was the worst that has occurred on the Illinois Central system for twenty years.

Several of the injured are beyond recovery and it is probable that the list of fatalities will be swelled to fourteen. Several of the unknown dead are thought to be prominent men of Cincinnati and adjoining cities in Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio. The bodies were badly mutilated and unrecognizable. Only two of the entire list of killed could be identified. All the injured, excepting L. H. Blonton, Cincinnati, Olive Patton, Carmel, Ohio; Emily Templeton, Sinking Springs, Ohio; Hanna Cowels, Lower Albany, Ind.; Jessie Morse, Cincinnati, Ohio; Emma Gallitone, Columbus, Ohio, and Miss E. Galatine, Columbus, Ohio, were brought to this city and taken to St. Luke's hospital by the city ambulances and patrol wagons. The train conveying them to the city arrived at 3 o'clock this morning. Ample preparations had been made by the police department to remove the injured to the hospital and with all possible haste they were taken out of the cars, placed on stretchers, carried to the waiting patrol wagons, and driven to St. Luke's, where a corps of physicians was ready to give them medical attention. The dead had been removed to Kankakee.

One of the most pitiful sights around the wreck was the grief of Mrs. Chris Kimmel, herself probably fatally injured. A number of those on board were from Dayton, Cynthiana and other Ohio points, and they had secured berths near together in the sleeper, worst wrecked, the one next the sleeper which bore the brunt of the collision. Into this car the forward end of the last sleeper was driven, crashing passengers and berths into the forward end in a shapeless mass. When Mrs. Kimmel was rescued the light of the lantern which shone on her shone beyond on the features of her husband, who had been killed by her side. She was so badly crushed that she could scarcely make a sound, but the words she could articulate were tearful appeals to the rescuers and nurses to find her husband's body. She knew that he was dead, but she feared that the cars would catch fire and his body be cremated.

The list of dead as reported at the Illinois Central headquarters in this city is as follows:

Emil Kimmel, Dayton, Ohio.
J. W. Powell, New Vienna, Ohio.
L. L. Sweet, Louisville, Ky.
David Jackson, Carmel, Ohio.
Minnie Dupers, Lower Albany, Ind.
Elderly man, unidentified.
Young woman, unidentified.

Three victims at St. Luke's hospital are in a doubtful condition. Physicians say their recovery is doubtful. They are:

Blanche Belleson, Sinking Springs, Ohio, probable fracture of skull and injury to spine.

William Evans Powellton, W. Va., superintendent of coal works, spine injured.

A. J. Scholter, Ripley, Ohio, merchant, legs cut and internal injuries.

Eleven others at St. Lukes are suffering injuries less severe. They are:

L. H. Blanton, capitalist, Indianapolis, body bruised.

James W. Braun, carriage manufacturer, Wilmington, Ohio, leg bruised.

Mrs. Braun, Wilmington, Ohio, feet crushed.

George Brackney, farmer, Wilmington, Ohio, legs broken and shoulder dislocated.

Miss Sally Evans, daughter of William Evans, Powellton, W. Va., slight bruises.

James Foster, Springfield, Ohio, painful contusions.

Mrs. James Foster, Springfield, bruises not serious.

Libbie Jackson, Cynthiana, Ohio, shoulder hurt.

Mrs. Chas. Kimmel, injured about the hips.

James Wilbur Means, Chester, S. C., cut and bruised.

Carey B. Wischart, clerk, Frankfort, Ohio, face cut.

SLICK FORGERS

Leave America for Fresher Fields of Labor.

The European Authorities Apprised of Their Coming and Will Be on the Lookout.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The police have intimated to all of the London banks that a gang of expert American forgers are on their way to London. It is said that the members of the gang possess the secret of effacing handwriting from checks. The warning of the police is intended to place the bankers on their guard against any attempts to victimize them.

BAD OHIO SOLDIERS.

They Raid the Eating Stands at Huntington.

While the Ohio militiamen were going to and returning from the world's fair, they raided the eating stands at Huntington and other points, carrying off food, cigars, plates, and whatever else their nimble fingers could clutch. Upon returning to Huntington the second time the militia found the police in waiting, and by reason of their vigilance the loss was comparatively small. The northern Indiana towns, more particularly Huntington and Rochester, feel exceedingly bitter and the Ohio authorities will be called upon to make good the loss. The Columbus guards are especially criticised as an undisciplined mob.

Well Known Editor Dead.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 19.—John C. Drew, lately associate editor of the Irish World, and a noted writer on political economy and ethics, died at his home here last night of heart disease, aged seventy-two.

Dancing was indulged in and an elegant dinner and supper was served. They were handsomely entertained by the genial host and hostess and returned home late in the evening.

S. A. Haines, the traveling salesman, known familiarly as "Parson" Haines, will lecture at Trinity church next Sunday evening. The lecture is under the auspices of St. Andrew's Brotherhood. Mr. Haines is ex-president of the Traveling Men's Protective association.

OHIO HOODLUMS.

Assault a Methodist Minister at Spencerville.

Because He Scored Them in His Sermon for Their Disorderly Conduct at the Meeting.

LIMA, Ohio, Sept. 19.—Rev. Mersfelder, of Spencerville, a Methodist minister, who also has a charge in the country southeast of that place, was assaulted and knocked insensible after his sermon Sunday evening. The minister had been annoyed for some time by a gang of hoodlums who attended his meetings, and in his sermon Sunday evening he scored them as they deserved. As he was leaving the church after the sermon he was met outside the door by young Walther, who said to the minister: "You must take back what you said tonight." The minister replied that he had nothing to take back. Walther then attacked him, knocking him insensible and beating him awfully. The minister was badly injured and may die. The assailant escaped.

CLAIMS HE IS THE MESSIAH.

Sensation Among Theosophists and Spiritualists at Onset Bay, Mass.

ONSET BAY, Mass., Sept. 19.—The president of the Mahatmas, Henry B. Foulke, has created consternation among his theosophical followers, and the spiritualists and liberals generally, at Onset Bay camp ground by coming out in a positive statement that he is the Messiah. Foulke says he has been reincarnated several times, no less than seven, that he has more or less recollection of it, and that Madame Blavatsky came to prepare the way for his entry as the Christ and to straighten out the serious condition of things now existing in the religious and business world. He claims to be in constant communication with the "shades," and that his announcement and actions are placed far beyond his personal control by the "shades" of the Thibetan brotherhood. Along with this, his latest and most sensational declaration, he prophesies that war and bloodshed are soon to follow the battle of labor against capital, and that socialism is soon to come out on top; that Lieutenant Totten is a great prophet and that much that he has told will come to pass.

Foulke has made many converts to his theosophical ideas at the camp grounds, and the strongest adherents he has are among the women. He is decidedly unpopular with the old line mediums here who appear to fear him and this new order of occult science which he promulgates among his followers in his long talks, promenades and siestas about the groves of Onset Bay campground. He makes no public or set speech, is not welcomed, nor does he attempt to mount the spiritualism rostrum under the oak trees or in the temple in the center of the grove, but keeps away from the spiritualist brothers and mediums, with the exception of Mme. Eugenie Best, at whose cottage he passes a considerable portion of his time. Mme. Best is a prominent medium from Washington.

Saturday the faithful at the campground were sorely rent by Foulke's declaration that he is the Messiah. Many of his adherents are weakening in their allegiance to him, owing to this latest and most pronounced stand he has taken. The old line spiritualists are indignant and say he ought to be driven out of camp, else the public will believe that the association and the true blue spiritualists are indorsing his absurd claim that he is Christ come again to the world to correct all the bad. The question of greatest concern at the camp ground is whether an aggressive action will be taken by the residents to dispute his claim or to rid their camp of his presence.

MARRIED ON A BALL FIELD.

Rosie Smith and Louis Rapp Wedded in the Presence of a Crowd.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 19.—At the Cincinnati ball park yesterday afternoon Miss Rosie Smith became Mrs. Louis Rapp, as well as the first bride of the diamond. The event passed off smoothly, and everyone present, including players, solemnly observed the occasion except the bridegroom himself. His mockery shines during the time Magistrate Tyrrell was propounding the questions to the pretty bride were ludicrous, but did not provoke the laugh among the spectators that Rapp expected.

Miss Smith looked lovely in her bridal costume of spotless white. Rapp wore the conventional black with white gloves. The party was loudly cheered during the march through the diamond to the home plate, where a muslin cloth twelve feet square had been stretched over the dusty ground. On this the bridal party stood, with six small American flags staked about them. Magistrate Tyrrell advanced with a big yellow bound book in hand and performed the ceremony. At its conclusion the two lady attendants kissed the bride and the crowd cheered loudly. The bridegroom was called upon for a speech. He responded by waving his hand and crying at the top of his voice: "It's all over now." As soon as the ceremony was over a shower of bouquets, rice and other nuptial offerings came from the stands. Several Cincinnati and Baltimore players tossed coins to the party, which Rapp scrambled for and pocketed.

WHISKY DOWNED HIM.

He Was Wedded to the Daughter of U. S. Judge Miller.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—Frederick Gotchell, brother of a Des Moines Iowa banker, and of a Chicago beef trade man, died in Oakland yesterday of blood poisoning caused by a trivial scratch. He came of a good Iowa family, and when a young man married a daughter of Justice Miller, of the United States supreme court. He drank heavily and his wife divorced him. On their separation he gave her half his fortune. Once, determining to reform, he joined the prohibitionists and stumped the state of Iowa for them. Soon afterward he went to Chicago and returned to his old habits. Coming to California he made money in lucky land deals, but before his death had lost it all. He married in California some years ago, but was again divorced. One of his brothers is on his way west and will take the body east for burial.

A NEW TARIFF BILL.

The Committee Nearly Ready to Formulate One.

Next Week Will Decide the Important Question So Far as Committee Work Goes.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The majority members of the ways and means committee have not yet decided upon a time for beginning the work of formulating the bill to replace the present McKinley law. Friday next will be the first regular meeting of the committee after the hearings have ceased, but it is hardly possible that the members will want to rush right into that part of the work after nearly three weeks' continuous sessions. Besides all the testimony submitted by those who have appeared before the committee is not yet printed, and the members will probably desire to study the statements made to them before entering upon the preparation of their bill.

The probabilities are, therefore, that nothing will be done on the details of the bill before next week. It is the expectation of Chairman Wilson and his colleagues on the committee that the measure will be ready for presentation to the house by November 1. Chairman Wilson has informed a number of persons who have applied for privilege of appearing before the committee, that it will be impossible to grant their requests, as the time allotted for hearings being already occupied. By the terms of the resolution adopted by the house, any particular subject upon which information is desired may be investigated by the sub-committee having it in charge, and in the course of preparation of the new tariff bill it is probable that several inquiries will be prosecuted under this resolution.

A. H. Hallagno, of New York, opened the hearings before the ways and means committee today by presenting petitions of the Associated Rank and Workmen's Reformed league, of New York, demanding that the duty on vegetables and products of the Bermuda Islands be removed or greatly reduced so that the middle classes of working people may be able to purchase and use the fresh vegetables which are required for their health in the early spring.

HORRIBLE, IF TRUE.

A Family of Six Persons Butchered by Unknown Parties at Washington, Ind.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 19.—A special from Washington, Ind., says news has just been received there that Benson Wratten and family, six in all, living near that place were butchered last night. The family lived in Harrison township, twelve miles from Washington. The victims are horribly mutilated.

TIED BLANKETS TOGETHER.

Five Prisoners Escape From Jail at Litchfield, Ky.

LITCHFIELD, Ky., Sept. 19.—Five prisoners, all white, escaped from the county jail last night by going across to the bath room, then cutting through a brick wall and letting themselves down by means of blankets tied together. They were Dave Hutchinson, under sentence of three years in the penitentiary for malicious shooting; Jack Skiggs and Tom Menton, one year each; Noah Burden and Henry McQuillan. Claude Slaughter, colored, under a sentence of four years for robbery, refused to take advantage of the opportunity to escape.

NEGRO LYNCHED.

The Colored People Incensed and Trouble is Feared.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 19.—Riley Gidley, a negro twenty-three years old, was lynched yesterday at Pine Apple, below this city, for attempting to rape Mrs. Nored, the wife of a highly respected farmer residing near Pine Apple. He was taken from the Pine Apple jail by a large crowd of angry citizens and strung up in the jail yard and his body was riddled with bullets. It is reported that the colored populace is greatly incensed over the affair and trouble is feared.

Handsome Dresses for Children.

"My sister's children," writes Mrs. B. in the Ladies' Journal, "wear dresses that do duty for several seasons, being dyed with Diamond Dyes from light colors to dark. Sashes, ribbons, and feathers are ever fresh-looking by the aid of Diamond Dyes. This is all done with so little expense and so little work that no one can complain that it is too much trouble. It is really wonderful what can be done with Diamond Dyes."

The Bee Hive will be closed tomorrow to observe Holiday. Open 6 o'clock in the evening.

HODGDON'S CAREER.

Prof. H. A. Hodgdon who came to this city some weeks since and was engaged as leader of the First Regiment band, who was arrested on the charge of living with a woman who was not his wife, was released on his promise to leave the city, which he did. The woman, Mrs. Ring, of Princeton, Ill., who eloped with him, returned to her husband, who came to this city in search of her.

Will L. Kershaw, the city editor of the Daily Tribune of Princeton, Ill., from which city the professor hails, sends us a column writeup in his paper of the movements of Hodgdon at that place. Among other things the article says: "Early last winter or fall there drifted into this city of churches, square-dealing merchants and music-loving people, a dark-eyed young man of possibly some thirty-five or forty summers, who showed every evidence of buffeting and hard usage from a selfish world, and who soon ingratiated himself into the good graces of ready made friends. This young man gave his name as Harry A. Hodgdon, and soon pushed himself into prominence and his services were in demand."

The Tribune then recounts how Hodgdon swindled a number of merchants there and sums up his crooked deals as follows: "Pierson is left for $57, Garnsey, $30, Neilson & Nystrom, North End tailors, $8; Selig's orchestra, of which Hodgdon was instructor, about $15; the Colored band, $60; Boggs, the livery man, $10, Dr. Pierson, $7, and several other smaller amounts. All these trusting ones hold Hodgdon's memory dear, but they all rather wish him here, so that they might make a more equitable settlement with him. But he isn't here, and is not likely to be until his sins are forgiven."

"NOT MUCH ACCOUNT."

That is What Jack Case Said This Morning.

A Pervert Sent to Jail for Thirty-five Days—Alvin Joslin Again—Heartless Farmer.

"I'm not much account," said Jack Case, a prisoner at police court this morning. "That's about the size of it," replied the mayor. "Your fine will be $25 and costs." Case is an old offender and there is some question as to his responsibility. He has the face and head of a genuine criminal, and to look at him anyone would pronounce him such. His chief offence, however, consists of his insane desire to expose his person on public thoroughfares. He has been arrested for this offense repeatedly and sent to jail, but just as soon as he is let out and gets one or two drinks of whisky in him he goes out upon the streets and is promptly run in. Yesterday he was picked up on West Washington street by Officer Trautman. Case went to jail, where he will remain for thirty five days unless bailed out.

Alvin Joslin had "nothin' to say, your honor" when the mayor asked him his plea to a charge of drunkenness. Officer Paul made the arrest. The policeman stated that Alvin was in a frightful state of intoxication [illegible] his street, yesterday evening. He imagined he saw white mice, blue rats, gigantic cockroaches and other uncanny things. The whisky he had been drinking was evidently of a deadly kind.

Officer Trautman also testified as to the arrest of a drunken farmer near the corner of Calhoun and Berry streets yesterday, about noon. The farmer had been at Churubusco and came to town to get [illegible] for his sick wife. [illegible] point of death at her home. The unfortunate woman was suffering with typhoid fever. Last night some one called at the station house and paid his fine.

THE ELEMENTS AT PLAY.

St. Paul the Scene of Their Antics.

Fred Miller and William Kessler Killed by Lightning—Windows Smashed by Hail.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 19.—The elements made a plaything of St. Paul for a time yesterday and the dry spell of the past weeks was effectually broken. A little after 11 o'clock the water came down in a steady stream, which, however, lasted but a few minutes. There was a lull in the storm and the sky showed signs of clearing, but the rain of the forenoon was only a harbinger of what came in the afternoon. Darkness, such as seldom comes in the day time, fell over the city and the lights were lit in all the buildings and electric lights had to be turned on the street cars. After a few gusty blows and flashes of lightning the storm burst. The rain came down in torrents for a few minutes, but quickly changed to hail. Shade trees and window glass suffered greatly. The lightning did fatal work. Fred Miller and William Kessler, two young Germans, were instantly killed.

AUGUSTA, Wis., Sept. 19.—A tornado yesterday blew several frame dwellings off their foundations, took the roof off Williams' store, leveled barns and fences, and pulled up trees by the roots. It is believed great damage was done in the country, but there are no particulars.

Mr. Smith, previous to his connection with the Postal Telegraph, was employed in the Chicago office of the United Press. He is an expert in telegraphy. Mr. Crall will assume charge of the day report of the Associated Press.

WAS IT MURDER?

What Caused the Death of Emma S. Baer.

Mystery Surrounding the Death of an Unfortunate Girl.

Sent From Dr. Thayer's Lying-in Hospital Dying in a Hack—Some Arrests Likely to Follow.

Lying in a meagerly furnished house at No. 131 East Wallace street is the body of a fair young girl cold and still in death.

The circumstances which surround her untimely taking off are suspicious in the extreme, and while they do not point to direct murder, they are such that the authorities are warranted in making the most rigid investigation into the cause of her death.

Among the deaths recorded at Undertaker Peltier's morgue this morning a SENTINEL representative found the following: "Emma S. Baer, aged 18. Cause of death, stomach trouble. Signed, Frederick Thayer, M. D."

The reporter looked twice at the words "stomach trouble" and "Frederick Thayer, M. D." The doctor has been talked of considerably of late in the newspapers, and as he is known to keep a lying in hospital on Short street, in Bloomingdale, the reporter thought the death

A SUSPICIOUS CASE.

Inquiry of some of the employes of Mr. Peltier elicited no information. One employe in particular was so uncivil as to give the whole thing away. A few moments later it was learned that Coroner Harrod had been called to investigate the cause of the death and not long after, the coroner, Dr. Miller, the city health officer, and a SENTINEL representative were en route to No. 131 East Wallace street. Previous to arriving at their destination the doctors and reporter were informed that No. 131 had been unoccupied until yesterday, and that a strange family had moved in yesterday morning. Shortly after 6 o'clock last evening a hack was seen to be driven to the door and a young woman, evidently very ill, taken out and into the house. This morning there was

CRAPE ON THE DOOR.

Health Officer Miller being called to see a patient before going to the house Coroner Harrod and THE SENTINEL representative went on alone. Arriving at the residence, which is located on the northeast corner of Clay and Wallace streets, and is an unpretentious frame dwelling, the coroner and reporter knocked at the back door.

"Who do you want?" asked a middle-aged lady, dressed in a plain, black dress. The woman had a careworn face, which showed signs of recent tears and great suffering.

"I am the coroner," replied Dr. Harrod.

REFUSED ADMITTANCE.

"Well, we don't want you," answered the lady.

"I can't help that," replied the doctor. "We must see your daughter, if you are Mrs. Baer."

The coroner and reporter entered the room. A young man was seated at the kitchen table eating his dinner. "Let them go in and see her, ma," said he.

The mother of the dead girl then showed the way to the front room. Lying on a stretcher near a window and covered by a sheet was the body of

THE DEAD GIRL.

Coroner Harrod went up and examined the face of the corpse.

"Young, wasn't she?" he remarked.

"Yes, only eighteen years old," answered the woman, with a sigh.

"Are you her mother?"

"I am," replied the woman.

"We are here on a very delicate mission," said the coroner, "and the best thing for you to do is to tell us all you know of the case."

"I am a poor widow and you will help me, won't you?" said Mrs. Baer in a pleading voice.

"Yes, if you will tell us what caused your daughter's death?" replied the coroner.

MRS. BAER'S STATEMENT.

The woman then consented to tell her story. Just as she began her son came into the room and the coroner calling for pen and ink arranged to take Mrs. Baer's full statement in writing. She said:

"My name is Mary J. Baer, and my daughter, Emma, son Frank, and myself came to Fort Wayne from Springfield, Ohio, about a year ago. Emma was sent to the Clay street school and attended several months. Not long ago she confided to me the sad secret that she would become a mother sometime in the fall. I was TERRIBLY SHOCKED.

At my child's confession. The girl said that her betrayer was a young man of respectable parents in this city. I at once told her to mention the fact to no one, not even her brother, and I would see what could be done. I then went to Dr. Frederick Thayer and arranged with him to take charge of Emma until she should be confined. I had but little money and agreed to give the doctor my

[illegible]

What more I would be indebted to him I agreed to pay in cash. Emma went to his hospital the last week in July. In the meantime I went into the country to work for George Gephart, the gardener, until Emma should be confined, when I intended taking her to our old home in Springfield, Ohio. The poor girl wrote to me several times, and while she was there I went to see the father of

HER UNBORN CHILD.

His first name is Will, but I will not tell his last name. He is only a boy, but his parents are well to do and respectable. They said they would pay all the expenses if their son was the father, and this I easily proved to them and the matter was satisfactorily compromised. Emma's child was born on the 5th of September. For some reason the doctor became incensed at me and I was

NOT ALLOWED TO SEE HER.

Neither was she allowed to write to me. I became very much worried and called at the hospital to see my poor child several times, but was not allowed inside the house. Although the child was born on the 5th day of September, I did not know it until last Wednesday, when the doctor sent me word that the child had been born and that Emma was getting well. Yesterday he sent word to me that

EMMA WAS WELL.

He also asked me to come and take her home at once. I procured a hack last evening and went out to the hospital to get Emma. I was terribly shocked to find that instead of being well, as the doctor had represented, my daughter was in a dying condition and had been for the past twelve hours. Almost frantic with grief, I placed her in the hack and had the driver take me to the house I had rented on Wallace street. The poor girl was in

A TERRIBLE CONDITION.

She was perfectly rational, but knew that she had only a short time to live. She gave me her child, which is a pretty little girl, and told me to be kind to it for her sake. I asked her what kind of treatment she had received at Dr. Thayer's and she told me they were a bad lot. "They treated me very badly and I don't like them. They are too cruel," said Emma.

My poor daughter died this morning, at 3:30 o'clock. We did everything we could for her and called Dr. Stutz, but she was too far gone. Although she died from puerperal fever, I think it was brought on

BY CRUEL TREATMENT.

After Emma was dead we found that her back was literally black and blue as though she had been beaten. About her neck was a deep purple mark which looked as though she had been choked or strangled. Her hands also had the appearance of having been tied.

Here Mrs. Baer finished her statement and swore to the document which Coroner Harrod had prepared.

BROTHER'S STATEMENT.

Frank, the brother of the dead girl, was next called upon to make a statement. He said he was a printer and had been employed at the Newspaper Union, but was now holding cases for the Daily Gazette. He said he knew but little of his sister's shame, as his mother had kept it a secret from him. However, he corroborated the statement about the marks of violence on his sister's body.

After Frank had been questioned, the coroner examined the body of the girl and the marks of violence were very plainly seen.

DAY OF ATONEMENT.

The Greatest Jewish Feast of the Year Begins this Evening.

No Food or Drink Will Be Taken—Religious Services at the Achduth Veshalom Temple.

This evening, when the sun disappears in the western horizon, every place of business kept by Israelites in Fort Wayne will be closed, and all the Jews in the city, whether they be professional men, clerks or laborers, will abstain from all work for twenty-four hours. It is the most solemn day in the Jewish church year, divinely instituted as the Yom Kippur—the day of the atonement—and occurs on the tenth day of Tishri, beginning the evening before.

The observance demands a strict abstinence from food and drink, and an uninterrupted season of confession of sins, prayers, forgiveness and offerings of atonement. Four times and in four different chapters of the Pentateuch is the commandment given to keep this day of days sacred.

The Hebrews of this city will observe the day solemnly, and all their places of business will be closed. Services will be held at the temple tonight and all day tomorrow.

"Faust" drew a large and fashionable audience at the Temple last evening. This old play is just as popular as ever, especially when produced by such a company as Morrison's. Much of the scenery is new and the change in some respects is an improvement over the old. The closing scene of the fourth act, where Mephisto reveals the infernal regions to the doctor, is brilliant but sad.

Misses Bettine Amos and Flora C. McCoy, of Wabash, were in the city the guests of Mrs. Edward M. Wilson, of West Berry street.

Charles H. [illegible], editor of the Wabash Plain Dealer, witnessed the production of Faust at the Temple last evening.

AUSTERLITZ!

Not the Famous Conquest of the Great Napoleon,

But Still a Great Victory Over a Dreaded Enemy.

Fraught With More Value Than all the Conquests of Napoleon.

AUSTERLITZ, MICH.—This town was named in honor of the place where the great Napoleon so signally conquered his enemies. Our little town has lately witnessed some notable conquests, conquests which are of more benefit to the world and to mankind than were all the victories of Napoleon.

Mr. Thomas Carson, one of our most prominent citizens, became very ill.

"I was troubled," he says, "with liver disease, biliousness, chills, bad digestion and more or less rheumatism. I was very nervous, and had hysterical dreams. I suffered terribly with faint and dizzy spells, had no appetite and could not sleep at night.

"I did not know what to do, but finally began to use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. The very first bottle made such a decided change in my condition that I bought five bottles and took them up and I must and will say that I am astonished at what this medicine has done for me.

MR. THOMAS CARSON.

"I am completely well and I shall always pray that Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy will always exist. I shall never be without it in my house, for I think it was a God send to me. I would like what I say published for the benefit of other unfortunate sufferers from disease."

Mrs Mary J. Warner, of Austerlitz, says:

"I was troubled with nervousness and sick headache. I had no appetite and could not sleep half the night. I was very weak and prostrated. I used Dr Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and it has completely cured me. I cannot speak loud enough in its praise."

If you are sick, use this great remedy. It is purely vegetable and harmless.

It is the discovery of a physician, Dr Greene, of 35 W. 14th street, New York, the noted specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, and he can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

It won't hurt our police force to be touched up. They need it.

If there is anybody who dare say that the best men should not be nominated for office, let him rise up and say it.

It is not too early to talk about the candidates for the city offices next spring. Let the best men be hunted up and brought out.

If the police cannot run down the burglars any better than they have been doing, the city ought to employ a detective for that purpose.

Isn't Fort Wayne getting to be a pretty tough city? Burglaries at the rate of one a night for a whole week is just piling it on a little too thick.

Some of the citizens on the resident streets of the city are talking of employing private watchmen to assist the police in watching burglars and preventing midnight depredations. It is costly, but it seems to be a necessity.

A charge of criminal libel has been placed against D. A. Fawcett, editor of the Lagrange Democrat by County School Superintendent Machan, growing out of criticisms in the Democrat of the superintendent's alleged connection with the purchase of school supplies by township trustees.

The city needs and ought to have the very best fire protection obtainable. For this reason the action of the fire commissioners in improving our service for fighting the flame demon was wise and timely. At their meeting yesterday it was decided to recommend to the city council the building of three new engine houses, work to begin at once. The houses will be in the Fifth, Eighth and Ninth wards. The city council ought to ratify the action of the commissioners.

The board of state charities has issued a report of the charitable and correctional institutions for the nine months ending July 31. The total cost of maintaining the insane hospitals was $390,363 11. During the nine months the daily average increase in the number of inmates over the daily average of the preceding year has been 17.84 per cent. For the correctional institutions the cost of maintenance was $209,695 18, and the earnings amounted to $136,2[illegible]

The advance in the price of wheat is most welcome to the farmers. The bears may succeed for a time in preventing a further advance and may even hammer the market down, but as the financial scare is over, the general tendency of the grain market from now on is almost certain to be upward. Our wheat crop this year is not much in excess of our annual home consumption, and, as there is a shortage in other wheat growing countries, there will be a demand for our surplus.

Every once in awhile the officers take a notion in their heads to raid the gambling dens and the houses of prostitution in the city, and having collected in the shape of fines and costs about as much money from them as those places will stand and still continue in the business, they cease their reform measures in this direction. There isn't much in that kind of law enforcement. It is the almighty dollar that moves the officials. They have no desire to suppress these places. If they did, they could easily do so, and their action would be commended.

The beginning of the third week in September brings many hopeful signs of business recovery. Money has come out of its hiding places and circulates once more, if not as freely as in the best of times, at least in sufficient quantity to serve the immediate needs of trade. Many shut down manufacturing establishments have started up again at decreased wages it is true, and others only on half or three quarter time but all resumptions showing increasing confidence. These unmistakable signs of business improvement would mark the opening of as good a fall and winter trade as we have seen in years if it were not for the failure of the senate of the United States to appreciate the imperative demand of the hour. Let them act at once and repeal the obnoxious silver law.

The supreme and appellate courts convened at Indianapolis today. Since adjourning for vacation in June, eighty new cases have been filed in the supreme court and forty four new ones have been added to the appellate docket. The supreme court has a number of important cases pending. The constitutionality of the fee and salary law will be passed upon, and the Columbian Athletic club receivership will come up early on the petition to advance. The White county court house case is also pending. In this contest Judge Reynolds ordered the court house torn down, saying that it was unsafe. The county commissioners ordered the structure repaired. The constitutionality of the law to increase the salaries of the superior judges will also be tested by a case from Vigo county. The Parker and McAfee case will have to be passed upon at an early day, as the men are under sentence to be hanged November 3. The court dockets are considerably behind, and the judges have been at work during their vacation to relieve them.

We Are Noisy People.

The Americans are described by Mr. Walter Besant as a nation of slammers. They slam slam slam. All the time, in train and tram, in boat, in house, they slam, on every door, for certainty of slam, an unrelenting roll of spring they jam, as they enter and depart so they slam old and young, and youth and maid and baby slam; with a snap like an oyster or a clam; with explosion like the bursting of a dam, with volleys as of million rifle fire, with echoes rolling further, wider higher. No one heeds it, no one shrieks, no one swears, though it thunders, beats and bangs about his ears, on the boat and in the train and in the tram, day and night, with scrupulosity they slam, or they ring—and ring—and ring—and ring the bell; the engine when it starts rings the bell; when it slows and when it stops it rings the bell; the land is always saddened by that knell; the cars electric never stop the bell; the horse tram clears the way with the bell; from early morn till midnight we can tell the going and the coming by the bell; every church on every steeple has a bell, and the tingle, tingle, tingle, sharp and clear, and the thunder of the superstitious slam, with agony neurotic strike the ear; till the stranger longs to scream and writhe and pray, saying: "Oh! My brothers! If it may be, oh! refrain in house, and boat, and tram, and railway train, from the ringing of the bell and from the slam; from the tolling of the locomotive knell; from the tintinnabulation of the bell and the thunders and volleys of the slam."

Said a gentleman prominent in masonry the other day: "Secret societies organized for benevolent and brotherly purposes, have larger memberships now than ever before. But you rarely see a man wearing the badge or pin of the order to which he belongs. That sort of nonsense is about played out. Anyone with a spare quarter can buy a Knights Templar charm or the three-linked Odd Fellows' pin, and the wearers are often 'clandestines,' or people who have no right thus tacitly to declare themselves affiliated with a great order. The abuse of these trinkets, therefore, has caused nearly all legitimate society men to shun them, and to be suspicious of those who display them."

A German physician has been making a series of experiments to test the comparative value of different kinds of oil for the purpose of distilling the waters. He declares that petroleum or paraffin is of no use whatever, and olive oil of little value. On the other hand, he says that rapeseed oil and oil of turpentine have considerable affect, but the most effective of all oils is train oil. Not satisfied with these experiments he then set to work with other fatty materials and reports that he found a solution of soap to be far superior as a wave stiller to any kind of oil. He says that only a very thin solution of soap is required, about one part of soap to a thousand parts of water.

A specially rich strike of silver ore in the west is not so profitable to the owner of the mines as an outsider might suppose, partly because it costs more, weight for weight, to transport rich ore than poor ore from the mine to the smelting furnace. When a mine owner asks a railway company to run in a spur to his mine and seeks to make terms for transportation the first question in reply is, "How much does your ore assay?" The railway's charge per ton is in proportion to the value of the ore.

It may have surprised some folks to learn that it would require five years for the mints of the United States government to coin 167,000,000 silver dollars, but the time is not so surprising when one has done a little figuring. The mints have scarcely 300 full working days in the year, or less than 700,000 working minutes in five years. To coin 167,000,000 in that time, therefore, it would be necessary to turn out more than 250 dollar pieces per minute.

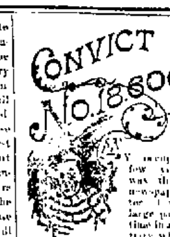

Lady Tryon, widow of the late admiral, has refused the government pension of three thousand dollars which admirals' widows always receive. She is aware of the responsibility of her husband for the Victoria disaster, and is unwilling to be a beneficiary of the government's bounty under such circumstances. The admiral was a lieutenant when she married him.

The annual report of the Boston Fire Department attributes the cause of a number of fires in that city last year to "smoking in bed," and it has a subdivision in which the origin of the fire is set down to "careless smoking in bed." Where the line can be drawn is not obvious to the ordinary mind, but it may be to the Bostonian.

Another crank in search for notoriety is a young man named Beck, who intends riding across Niagara falls on a cable, forty feet higher at one end than the other. A grooved wheel will be on the wire, and attached to this will be a piece of steel which will just fit his mouth. This he will hold in his teeth and make "a grand slide."

A [illegible] man was late [illegible] for thirty days for [illegible] [illegible] The [illegible] their act misdemeanor.

MY occupation a few years ago was that of a newspaper reporter. I worked a large part of my time in a penitentiary, where more than 1,000 prisoners were confined. My newspaper required of me three "feature" articles a week, the subjects to be taken from the lives and crimes of the men and women so imprisoned.

One morning, on entering the penitentiary and proceeding to the book which contained the routine items for the press, I found there this slip:

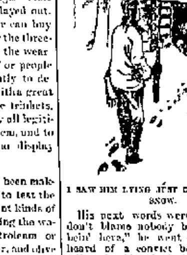

"No. 18,600, Edward Washburn, life prisoner, sentence commuted to twenty-eight years and six months."

Here was something to be investigated. On making inquiry I found that Edward Washburn had been received on a life sentence in 1856 and that now, after a lapse of over twenty years, the board of pardons, the eternal source of hope for all prisoners in that state—had acted upon his case, with the above result. Even in prison good behavior pays. Each convict has a certain number of days deducted from every month of his term, according to the length of his sentence, if he demeans himself properly. Thus it lies in the power of a "longtime" man to gain years of freedom. Allowing Washburn the deduction each month for good conduct during his entire twenty-eight years' sentence, it caused his time to expire on the following Sunday.

The next thing to do was to see Edward Washburn himself. The sensations of a man who has been a convict for twenty years, who has been as completely isolated from the outside world as if he were dead and buried, and who is then resurrected, called back to life and liberty, cannot be devoid of interest to the most indifferent. I found my man wheeling ashes and refuse from the cook house. In this occupation he had been engaged for seventeen years.

The long years of prison life had had their effect. The prisoner was an old man, broken in body and mind, although he told me his age was 42. I explained that I had permission to talk with him, and would like to hear about his history. He smiled the weak smile of enfeebled intelligence, sat down on his wheelbarrow and began with pitiful slowness, which plainly bespoke the prison discipline.

"How did I feel when I heard I was pardoned? Well, it was so sudden like I just had to sit down. I had give up all hopes of ever gettin' out long ago, but Mandy was true grit, she was, she never give up."

I SAW HIM LYING JUST OUTSIDE IN THE SNOW.

His next words were unusual. "I don't blame nobody but myself for bein' here," he went on. Who ever heard of a convict before who attributed to himself the blame for being in the penitentiary? Most convicts are the innocent victims of villainous conspiracies. They never did any wrong in their lives and especially they never even dreamed of committing the crime for which they are serving sentence. Such a virtuous, upright and deeply wronged set of men can be found nowhere else as in prison.

"It was all along of my bullheadedness, but I guess I'd better go back to the beginnin' of my story if you want to hear it all. When I was about 19 year old Jason Scott and me took the job of clearin' eighty acres of land close to where Pauldin' is now. In them days the town was only a clearin' with a few log shanties. Jase was a couple of years younger than me. His father and mine had come West from Columbiana county and settled in Pauldin'. We was the only boys in them parts then—the only young folks exceptin' Mandy Pitcher. We figgered on clearin' our land winters, as our fathers agreed to give us the time after corn huskin' was done, providin' we helped them good summers. Jase and me built a cabin and there we intended livin' while we was doin' our choppin' and clearin'. There was lots of snow that winter and it come early. Oh, how I hate the winter. The snow lyin' out there in the prison yard brings the hull thing back to me, and how happy Jase and me was, workin' and talkin' about what we was goin' to do. I can most see the cabin now, with the door open and the snow all around as it looked that winter mornin'. Jase and me was goin' out huntin' that mornin'. I took my gun and started out, leavin' Jase to follow. I walked out a little ways and then looked around to see if Jase was comin'. He wasn't and I waited and hollered until I got all out of sorts with him. A crazy idee struck me and I jus' thought I'd shoot toward the cabin for fun and mebbe that would fetch him. God knows I didn't mean to do any harm. I was jus' a great big foolish boy and I got tired of waitin' and thought I'd shoot for fun, and mebbe that would fetch him."

I looked at the man, and he was as one in agony. His face was drawn, and a pallor was there which added to the prison tan and made it ghastly. His voice, puerile from the disuse of twenty years, had sunk into a hoarse whisper. He was staring at the great stone wall in front of him with dull, vacant eyes. He seemed oblivious to everything and kept repeating, "I didn't mean no harm. I only thought I'd shoot for fun, and mebbe that would fetch him."

I have looked into murderers' faces on the verge of eternity while the death warrant was being read, in order that I might tell the public next morning whether the lip quivered or the eye grew dim, but as I gazed at this picture of weakness and misery on the wheelbarrow in front of me, it made me sick. The victim of an act done in the name of "fun" and this was fun!

The man presently came to himself and went on.

"As I shot, Jase come into the door, and when the smoke cleared away I saw him lyin' just outside in the snow, face downward. I 'member pickin' him up and carryin' him inside, and then startin' out for Pauldin' for help. After that I don't remember nothin' until I found I was lyin' down on the ground and a crowd of men standin' round me. I heerd one of 'em say, 'He must have tripped up on that dee grapevine and hit his head on the root of the tree.' It 'pears as if Washburn and Scott must have had a racket over that gal, most likely—and Washburn killed Scott.' I found out afterward that a huntin' party had stopped at the cabin and found Jase lyin' on the floor dead, with my bullet through his heart. They looked for me and finally saw my tracks in the snow and followed them. They found me a couple of miles away in the woods, lyin' at the foot of a tree where I fell.

"Some believed my story and some didn't. There's didn't b'leve it said 'twarn't likely if what I said was true that I would 'a' tried to run away. All I know is I meant to set out for Pauldin', but it 'pears as if I'd gone wrong some way.

"The judge, as he said, wanted to 'low me a fightin' chance and give me the privilege of enterin' a plea of manslaughter. I said it was all along of my bullheadedness that I am here now, and so it was. My lawyer wanted me to plead guilty to the charge the judge offered me. I asked him what it meant. He said it meant that I killed Jase in a racket, and then give me a long argyfyment about malice aforethought, or something like that, but I didn't understand it. I only knew they wanted me to say I murdered Jase in a racket. I warn't going to say I done a thing when I didn't. I Bared up and I wouldn't listen to nobody. I couldn't see things right. Well, the trial didn't take long. Everythin' went erg'ssways for me. I told my story and pleaded guilty to nothin' except I didn't mean anything. I just shot to scare him. I didn't care much what they done with me for that. The other side showed how Jase had been found dead in the cabin, how I was found lyin' in the snow miles from Pauldin' as if I hadn't been goin' for help. Then they got witnesses who swore as how Jase and me were jealous 'bout Mandy, how I'd asked her to go to a gatherin' with me and she'd gone with Jase. It warn't so, I knowed it, but it wouldn't do no good for me to say it warn't. Mandy and me understood one another, though there wasn't much betwixt us then. I s'pose she might have told what she knowed about it on the stand, but I wasn't going to have her mixed up in this thing. I 'lowed they couldn't convict me because what I said was true.

"The jury fetched in a verdict of murder in the second degree, and accordin' to law that meant for life.

"They carried Mandy out of the courtroom. Seems as though she thought it was her fault some way or 'nother. Mandy's been trying to get me out ever since. She said if it hadn't been for her they couldn't 'a' shown no motive and couldn't 'a' sent me for life. I don't see what good it would 'a' done when they was all agin me."

I made a note of Mandy. She was good material from a reportorial standpoint. When I went out I asked the warden who Mandy was. "So you've been talkin' with Washburn, have you?" said he. "Well, Mandy is his girl. They say she has been coming down here from Paulding once every year with petitions and signatures to place before the board of pardons. Yesterday Washburn's sentence was commuted, which, by the way, you will find by looking on the press book." A picture of a faded little woman who had asked me the year before in the capitol if I would please tell her what time the pardon board met, rose in my mind. I said to myself: "That was Mandy."

As a rule the world does not throw open its arms to released convicts. It sees that all the windows in the house are well secured at night and that all the doors have extra strong fastenings on the day the papers announce a new list of releases. The people have not time to go down to the prison and watch the men pass out through the big gate. They pay a small sum each year to have that office performed for them by big, burly policemen. The policemen accompany the convicts down to the Union depot and see them off on their trains. It would be such a pity to have them go alone.

The morning of the day Washburn went out there was one other person present besides the policemen and reporters. It was the worn little woman who had asked me a year ago in the capitol if I would please tell her what time the pardon board met.—Kate Field's Washington.

The "Christian" Name.

The use of the term "christian name" seems to be English and American wholly. "baptismal name" is used in other countries. The term seems to have been used first after the reformation, when Biblical names were used as a reaction against the use of the saints' names in the calendar. It is evident that all Biblical names are not Christian, but the reaction went so far as to consider everything in the Bible as Christian and everything not in the Bible as pagan, or certainly nonchristian.

He Never Rides on the Rail.

While in West Chester, Penn., a few days ago Harry Allan said: "I will be 77 years of age next month, and have never as yet ridden in a railroad car, a horse car or an electric car, neither do I know the pleasures of such a jaunt. I have been in Philadelphia on but three occasions, and each time I walked the entire distance. I don't think that traveling by rail is remarkably dangerous, but I never had any desire to ride on the cars."

I used Ely's Cream Balm for dry catarrh. It proved a cure.—B. F. M. Weeks, Denver.

Ely's Cream Balm is especially adapted as a remedy for catarrh which is aggravated by alkaline dust and dry winds.—W. A. Hover, Druggist, Denver.

Ely's Cream Balm has cured many cases of catarrh. It is in constant demand.—Geo. W. Hoyt, Pharmacist, Cheyenne, Ky.

SPEAKING OF PEOPLE.

Edison is said to employ 300 women for fine mechanical work on his electrical inventions.

Booth once paid a theatrical shoemaker a bill of $115 for seven pairs of stage boots and shoes.

Joseph Ressel, the Austrian, who is said to have invented the marine screw propeller, died in abject poverty. But a monument was erected to his memory the other day in Vienna.

Barnes Greeley, only surviving brother of the famous Horace, lives on the old homestead at Chappaqua, and though verging on 80, is one of the most voluble talkers in the county.

Governor Russell of Massachusetts received a few days ago in his mail a box containing a cigar sixteen inches long and two inches in diameter. It had been sent by the consul at Costa Rica.

It is said that the two books which have been translated into more languages than any other volume except the Bible, are Dr. Smiles' "Self-Help" and Samuel Warren's "Passages From the Diary of a Late Physician."

Prince Victor Napoleon, who lives quietly in Brussels, is a great student of works on the army, military tactics, constitutional government and French history during the consulate and the two emperors. The prince is now thirty-one years old, and his demeanor is grave beyond his years.

For some months before his death Wagner, the composer, had in contemplation the writing of a book to be called "The History of My Dogs." It is a pity that he did not, for from boyhood to old age he was never without a canine companion, and some of his pets were remarkably clever and intelligent creatures.

Mr. Gladstone was visiting at Hollis Hill, and his physician, Sir Andrew Clark, had been invited to meet him. Sir Andrew arrived shortly before dinner, saw Mr. Gladstone, thought him looking white and tired and proposed a walk. "Yes," said the prime minister, and they left the house together. When the old man's foot touched the turf and a breath of the open air had filled his lungs, he turned to Sir Andrew and said: "Why not make it a run?" and off he went.

A handsome granite sarcophagus, erected to the memory of Barney Hughes, was unveiled at Elmwood cemetery, Memphis, recently. Hughes began life as a printer, but finding this an uncongenial pursuit he entered and achieved distinction in the field of telegraphy. He was the first who by touching his tongue to the broken wire could "take" the interrupted message. For a time he was chief telegrapher in General Bragg's army. After the war he assisted in establishing the overland telegraph line to Salt Lake City, and was the first man to operate a telegraph line from that city.

RARE AND READABLE.

The Borden trial cost the state of Massachusetts $14,000.

Amsterdam, the capital of Holland, rests upon forests of piles.

"Timothy" grass is so called because first extensively cultivated by Timothy Hanson, a Maryland farmer.

It is cited as complimentary that nearly all the monarchs of Europe are attended by American dentists.

The electric light has been introduced into a new doorwall near to the supposed site of Calvary and close to the Damascus gate at Jerusalem.

A medical exchange figures that the United States has the highest death rate from diphtheria, 430 in 10,000. According to the same authority Holland and Sweden come next with 440 each.

Abram Beam, living five miles north of Somerset, Pa., was tortured by robbers, lately, until he became unconscious. Mr. Beam is in his 67th year. He is possessed of considerable wealth, and the robbers evidently believed that he kept more or less of it in his house.

The curious fact is noted that many intelligent Englishmen of to-day, in their comments on this country, reflect the exuberant boastfulness for which Americans forty years ago were so severely criticised. "We can lick all creation," exclaimed Dickens' American. "There is no nation on earth that would dare attack you," said Walter Besant in Boston. In a similar strain spoke General Massy, of the British army, two or three weeks ago.

SUNDRY EATABLES.

A New York museum has a monkey snake charmer.

Frog pies were invented by the Italians in the fourteenth century.

A new variety of orange from the West Indies meets with much favor.

Some of the most palatable "chicken" croquettes are made of veal.

The value of Canada's fisheries' yield last year is announced as $18,541,171.

Fish, fruit and rare steaks should be the diet of the aged, according to a magazine writer who forgets the monotony.

In England there is considerable talk about grasshoppers as diet, due to the statements of Stanley and other African explorers.

A Paris medical journal declares jaundice is, or can be, cured by eating nothing but lettuce and lemons. What do the doctors say?

It is a new theory that watercresses act on the lungs beneficially. Moreover they are declared to possess wonderful tonic properties.

A new salad is called "ham and egg." It is made by fine chopped cooked ham, and egg cut fine and saturated with what the restaurant waiter calls "French dressing."

Pains and Aches.

We all have pains and aches, but they needn't last long—not any longer than it takes to put on an Allcock's Porous Plaster. The only thing to look out for is that you get the right plaster. There are others, but you don't want them: take our word for it, for when you need a plaster you need it, and there's no time for experimenting and finding out mistakes then. Ask for Allcock's Porous Plasters and see that you get them. If they say that some other is just as good, tell them that only the best is good enough for you. Allcock's Porous Plasters are quick and sure, and acknowledged by the highest medical authorities and everybody else to be the best outside remedy for pains and aches of every description.

AT FORT WAYNE.

At the Hotel Wayne For One Week, Commencing Wednesday, Sept. 20, and Closing Saturday, Sept. 30, 8 p. m.

An Investigation Which Discloses Facts of the Most Startling Character—Consultation, Advice, Examination and Treatment Until Cured Free of Charge to All Who Call During This Visit.

As many earnest requests have been made from the cities of Indiana for a visit from these physicians, they have consented, during their western tour, for the purpose of extending their already world-wide popularity, and with a desire to respond to the many earnest requests made from time to time by the friends and admirers of this progressive system, to spend ten days in Fort Wayne, where at their parlors especially arranged at the Hotel Wayne, they will meet all those who hold this opportunity as well as all others who desire CONSULTATION, ADVICE, EXAMINATION AND TREATMENT UNTIL CURED FREE OF CHARGE, thus giving sufferers from all forms of CHRONIC DISEASES personal attention, and thereby all the advantages of this great system which has worked such marvelous cures in Chicago and surrounding country. Although the time is short, so great is the interest in the FREE TREATMENT, as the cities visited will at least cost them Five Thousand Dollars, yet the numbers they will treat will be so large, the cures they will make be so varied, the good they will do will cover so large a field, that the advertisement will be double what could be obtained with the expenditure of $10,000 in any other way. They also hope to bring to the notice of all invalids their ELECTRO-THERAPEUTIC as well as their special system of practice. All they ask in return is that every patient so treated will upon the cure [illegible] to all their friends their all obtained in their individual cases by the German system. So the rich and the poor may come daily from 10 a. m. to 1 and 2 to 4 p. m. and 7 to 8 evenings for the entire three days above.

They treat all female trouble by the German method which does away with the speculum examinations, lines, pessaries and all local treatment.

The false desire to interest men all men who are suffering from the errors of youth that those are the sole importers of the justly celebrated Hindoo remedy so well and favorably known to the old world as the Aim Ameri 'ad Tabbod Method. They will guarantee absolute cure in all cases taken.

All desiring to test this system will have such an opportunity free of charge.

They earnestly invite you to come, see and examine for yourself their institution, advantages, appliances and success in curing the chronic ailments of suffering humanity. Their patients are numbered from all parts of the world, and no remarkable has been their success that we pause in wonder at the superior qualifications of the physicians who EXAMINE A SUBJECT, SEEMING TO KNOW THE STRUCTURE OF MAN, TELL DISEASE AT A GLANCE WITHOUT ASKING ANY QUESTIONS, LOOKING AT THE TONGUE OR FEELING THE PULSE.

No explanation is necessary from the patient, no previous knowledge of the case, every ache, pain or disagreeable feeling is pointed out and described to them than the patients can themselves. They locate, describe, understand and explain the case at a glance, historize its inception, progress and termination. Teaching in their consultation the patient's inherent power over all their weakness and debilities which lead to all the various diseases incident to their natures, give the proper remedy and course of treatment necessary to a perfect and permanent cure. No person should doctor any longer or take any more medicine before consulting them. Not only will they be surprised at their wonderful knowledge of disease, their plain, concise explanation of every cause and effect, but at the rapidity with which they relieve and cure the most obstinate diseases by this very progressive system. The only system by the aid of which, coupled with their knowledge of the structure of man, and their experience with the peculiarities of disease and its actions upon the functions of the body, to demonstrate to the patient whose life is endangered the real cause of his trouble and points to an absolute relief and cure.

which for the final extension for the varied classes of chronic diseases we challenge the world to equal.

This record, which is open to inspection of all interested, speaks for itself. The last year has been the most successful in the many years' experience of this great faculty. But 1893 bids fair to outrank all its predecessors. HIS CREDENTIALS.

Bacus Cook, M. D., C. M., the president of the Chicago Medical Council, is a graduate of the university of Victoria of Canada, also at the head of his class from the Bennett college of Chicago, Ill., and after an extended tour through Europe, visiting nearly all the colleges and hospitals in London, Paris, Edinburgh and Dublin, where the best advantage could be obtained for his chosen field of labor. While abroad he was unanimously elected a member of the Royal Society of Science, Letters and Arts of London, England, which was an especial compliment for his ability in his profession. Since his return he has been elected by the Bellevue Hospital Medical College of New York, also by the medical board of examiners of the great state of Illinois. With these credentials, together with twenty years experience in the various classes of chronic diseases with which his great practice has constantly surrounded him, eminently qualifies him to the eminent position he has so long held in the medical world as an expert specialist in chronic diseases.

As soon as it was known that Dr. Cook had been elected president of the Chicago Medical Council the legislature gave them a charter to establish.

TO PREVENT ROBBERY.

A Safe That Will Kill the Bandits.

Accidents, Incidents and Personal Mention of the People About the Railway Centers.

The latest suggested use for electricity is the prevention of train robberies by making express cars burglar proof by so charging the safe that any man touching it will be electrocuted. Superintendent Young, of the Chattanooga Electric railway, is the inventor. A small dynamo is to be placed in each car and connected with the doors of the car safe and the car steps. The safe will be large enough to hold a man, and will be of steel, lined with rubber, with a perforated bottom for ventilation. When a messenger is threatened he steps into the steel box, turns on the electric current and when the robber touches the safe the deadly current does the rest.

BRIEFLY TOLD.

Supt. C. D. Law went to Chicago this morning.

Tomorrow is pay-day at the Wabash and electric light shops.

D. Waterson, Nickle Plate conductor, is taking a vacation.

Henry Poyser, machinist in the Wabash shops, is sick and off duty.

Peter Collins has quit the service of the Nickel Plate. He was a brake man.

Ed White, of the Standard Wheel works, has moved into his new house on Monroe street.

Brakeman Ed Harper has returned to his duties on the Nickel Plate after a few days' absence.

Assistant Foreman George Saink, of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, went to Chicago last evening.

J. F. Rost, of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, is on duty again after an absence of two weeks.

Ura Ross, assistant ticket agent for the Pennsylvania company, has gone to the fair to spend a week.

Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Seibert, of Kendallville, are visiting Howard Seibert, of the electric light works.

Gus Fromuth has returned to the city after setting up an engine at Portland for the Bass company.

Jacob Hilgeman, of the electric light works, left yesterday for Wilmington, Ohio, on business for the company.

D. Frank Grawford has returned from Pittsburg, where he went on business for the Pennsylvania company.

World's fair traffic continues unabated on the Pittsburg and Nickel Plate roads. As usual all trains are crowded.

Tomorrow W. B. Davidson, of the Bass machine company, will go to Chicago to spend a few days at the fair.

Joseph Chadwick, of the electric light works, has returned from the east, where he was visiting his relatives.

William Miller, formerly of the Pittsburg shops, has found employment at the coal docks, under Foreman Paul Hanley.

The great question for western railway managers to solve just now is how to gain a reduction in operating expenses without causing labor troubles.

While adjusting bits in a planing mill at Rhinesmith & Simonson's factory this morning, Thomas Sellers had the fingers of his left hand painfully cut.

Brakeman G. W. Welsh, of the Nickel Plate, was initiated into the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen last evening and is laid up today for repairs.

The Union Railway company, of Lafayette, is securing the right of way for further extending its tracks, connecting the railways centering there with the various manufactories.

There is a rumor, which seems to have some foundation, that Oscar Murray, vice president of the Big Four, is to be appointed vice president in charge of the traffic department of the Lake Shore road.

T. E. Griffin, of the electric light works, was given the second rank in Phoenix lodge, K. of P., last evening. Notwithstanding the trying ordeal which he passed through he reported for duty this morning.

Master Mechanic Barney Fitzpatrick, of the Pennsylvania shops at Columbus, Ohio, is taking in the world's fair. He will arrive in this city Thursday and remain over night. Mrs. Fitzpatrick will also be here on that date.

Off duty list of Pittsburg trainmen: Engineer R. Doty, permission; Engineers W. Kahoe, J. McMullen and J. Leeper, sick; Engineer W. H. Shelvey, wife sick; Engineer J. G. Carman, attending a funeral; Fireman G. Huber, permission.

John Rost, of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, was fifty-six years old yesterday. In the evening he was reminded of the anniversary in a very pleasant manner. His friends gave him a surprise party, which proved to be a very enjoyable affair.

The Indianapolis papers report a lively trade in furniture. The improvement is also felt here and our factories are preparing to resume operations with old time vigor. Last week the Fort Wayne Furniture works were in operation five days and this week they will probably run six days.

W. F. Brunner, district passenger agent for the Pennsylvania lines at Indianapolis, has made his official report to Mr. E. A. Ford, general passenger agent at Pittsburg, which shows that during Grand Army week, Sept. 3 to 9 inclusive, the Pennsylvania lines sent out of Indianapolis to Chicago seventy three passenger trains, hauling 613 coaches, and carrying 29,651 passengers.

The Nickel Plate, which until recently was regarded an exclusively freight line, is coming to the front as a passenger line also. Between the hours of 1:30 p. m., Sunday, and 6 a. m., Monday, twelve passenger trains, loaded to the full capacity of each coach, passed over this road. Eight of the trains were westbound. Yesterday and to-day each of the three westbound trains were divided into two sections.

Nickel Plate engine 167, which has recently been in the shops for repairs, is again hauling passenger trains No. 5 and 6. This engine is credited with the largest mileage of any on the Fort Wayne roads. She was built in 1882 and has been in almost constant use in the passenger service since. Engineers W. D. Miller and Dennis McCarthy and Firemen Blair and Ingram are the crews of 167 and they regard her one of the best engines on the road.

Says the Indianapolis Journal: "An idea of the dullness of freight traffic the last sixty days is shown in the fact that on the Big Four system there are standing on side tracks four thousand empty cars belonging to the company and eight thousand belonging to fast freight lines and foreign roads. A couple of weeks of good business, however, would rapidly thin out this number, as, when business is at a fair volume on the Big Four system, five thousand cars are handled daily."

But a very small per centage of the wheat crop has been sold. The great bulk of the grain is still in the hands of the farmers, who will hold onto it as long as they can in the hopes of a better price. Consequently, the railways are not doing much in the freight line. There is one consolation for the companies—the grain is bound to move sooner or later, and the longer the movement is delayed the better it is for the railways. Sixty days more will close lake navigation and all freight will then go by rail.

DEATH OF PHIL BOYNTON.

Philip H. Boynton, the oldest and best-known railroad engineer in the west, with a record never equalled in railroading, died yesterday morning at Peru, Ind., aged sixty-five years. He began railroading in 1850, and helped build the Wabash and other roads. He has run an engine continuously forty years and never had a serious accident nor killed a person. His mileage equals seventy times around the earth. He was in active service up to three months ago.

Could Be Always Good Like You.

A former Fort Wayne gentleman sends us the following beautiful poetry:

When I reproved my little girl,
Her clear grey eyes were ground and wet;
She owned her fault, for pardon plead,
And spoke some words I can't forget,
"If you were little just like me,
Would ever you be naughty too?
If I were only all grown up,
I could be always good like you."

She meant it. Her sweet innocence,
Which sent such sharp and sure a dart,
Knew nothing of the wicked moods
That sometimes sway her mother's heart.
Wrath, envy, folly, discontent,
The selfish impulse not withstood,
These things are one; yet my child
Believes that I am always good.

On Sabbath day the man of God
Reproves me often unaware;
Ashamed I hear his earnest voice
My own unworthy deeds declare,
And nobler lives rebuke my own.
But none had ever shaft so true
As she whose loving faith declared
"I could be always good like you."

Hydrophobia

Dogs transmit it through their teeth. Teeth should be kept free from virus. Use SOZODONT, keep the human teeth clean, and no damage can be done by the man who says to his girl, "I feel like eating you up, dearest."

TOLD BRIEFLY.

News of Interest From Different Parts of the State.

The street railway system at Evansville is still tied up by the strikers. The strikers offer to return to work at seventeen cents per hour, but the management will pay but fifteen.

Swindlers circulated in Dearborn county, offering farmers $2 for the privilege of posting show bills on their farms. The farmers were called upon to sign receipts for the money, and these receipts afterwards turned up as notes calling for $50 and even $100.

The health board of Hartford City seized on an old house in the outskirts of the city intending to convert it into a smallpox hospital, should one be needed. Farmers in the neighborhood raised a vigorous outcry, and night before last the property was burned to the ground.

Thomas Trusty, of Pike county, took his shotgun and started hunting. In climbing over a fence, in sight of his home, a rail broke and his gun was discharged, the load taking effect in his breast. His wife and child ran to his assistance, and Mr. Trusty caught his child in his arms and started for home, but he had gone but a few yards before he again fell, dying in a short time.

W. F. Vogt, editor of the People's Paper, of Covington, and postmaster of of that city, is dead. He has long been an invalid, due to consumption, and his manifold duties drew heavily upon his strength. Several weeks ago he was drawn into an exciting controversy with the Veedersburg News, and as the battle of words flew back and forward his mind gave way under the strain. For several days preceding his death he was delirious.

THE Iowa Supreme Court has rendered a decision defining what constitutes a peddler. A man went from house to house in Stuart taking verbal orders for spoons, albums, etc. A few days later the merchandise was shipped to Stuart and delivered to the purchasers by one Cunningham. While thus engaged he was arrested for violating an ordinance prohibiting peddlers from selling or offering for sale goods or merchandise along the streets or from house to house. The case finally reached the Supreme Court, where the defendant was ordered discharged. The court says that the authorities are not agreed as to what constitutes a peddler, but it adds that its attention has not been called to any authority which holds that a person who delivers goods previously sold by another is a peddler within the ordinary use of that term. The defendant did nothing that was prohibited by ordinance and should have been acquitted."

So Say We All.

"It's a remarkable fact," said a Boston newspaper man to me yesterday, "that the dining car service on the various railroads only begins to be good when you get west of Chicago, whereas, the further east you get, the worse you are served, with one notable exception—the Nickel Plate road" * * "I was agreeably surprised by the dining car service of the Nickel Plate road. It compared well with the best service on the western roads" "That was a high compliment, and I mean to let my townsmen know of the good repute in which at least one Cleveland road is held by strangers"—The Lounger, in the Cleveland Town Topics.

Professor Fred. Gerecke, was arrested in Scranton, Pa., lately. He victimized a great many people by representing that they were entitled to interests in estates in Germany. Upon the payment of fees Gerecke guaranteed that his client would receive a share in a $—— estate.

Horace Vernet is the best example of visual memory. He could paint a striking portrait of a man, life size, after having once looked at his model. Mozart had a great musical memory. Having heard twice the "Miserere" in the Sistine Chapel, he wrote down the full score of it. There are soloists who during twenty-four hours can play the composition of other masters without ever skipping a note.

Wah Chong, a Chinese merchant of Seattle, made his fortune in importing Chinese laborers. He is said to be worth over $1,000,000. He had several wives, one of them an Indian woman, the mother of a son of whom he is very fond. Wishing to leave his property to his son, his Chinese children having no claim to citizenship, he appealed to the courts on the ground of the mother being a native, and judgment was rendered in favor of the boy.

The following unique advertisement recently appeared in the Neue Freie Presse of Vienna: "A young man (socialist) wishes to marry a girl of similar convictions. She must be kind-hearted, a serious thinker, of a manly character. The most important conditions are wealth, beauty and a talent for literature. The marriage must be preceded by long correspondence. Reply to "Wedded Battlers for Liberty," at the office of the Neue Freie Presse.

IN FOLLY'S WAKE.

No one can ever tell what a woman will do next. If any one did tell, says Brown, she would be sure to go and do something else.

"How strange that Mrs. Flintheart should put on mourning before her husband died?" "Not at all; his life insurance policy has just expired, and it was for twenty thousand."

Neighbor's Boy—Maw sent me over to ask if you'd lend her your bottle o' cough medicine. Mrs. Kaser—You tell your mother we keep one cough medicine strictly for home consumption.

Emeline—I'm awfully afraid I've offended Archie. Annabel—In what way? Emeline—I broke our engagement and forgot to tell him about it until I'd given it out to the society papers.

Meekison—That flat house was fire proof, was it not? Murdison—Yes. Meekison—Well, how did it happen to get burned down? Murdison—It was set on fire by some safety matches that were carelessly left lying about.

Proud Young Woman—No! I wouldn't marry you if you were the last man in the world. Fond Youth, rejected but not crushed—You can bet your sweet life you wouldn't! I'd have too good an assortment to select from.

Counsel—But your claim on the Accident Insurance company for $5,000 for the loss of three fingers is exorbitant. What is your profession? Plaintiff—I'm a swell pickpocket, and the loss of my fingers has ruined my business.

"I'm afraid there is a great deal of temptation to break the Sabbath in Chicago," said the wife of the man who went to the world's fair. "Yes," was the reply; "but the man who tries it doesn't get any the best of it. He always gets broke, too."

DIVERTING DIALOGUES.

"Did I tell you that story about 288?" "No." "Well, I'm afraid I can't tell you. It's two gross."

"Do you meet your bills regularly?" "Well, I should say. I meet a bill every time the mail-carrier calls."

"I understand Jigson is financially interested in the concern he is with." "Yes, they owe him six months' salary."

He—Do you really love me, Sieglinde? She—What a question! I like you lots better than any of the other men I'm engaged to.

Charley—So, Jim, you were extravagant enough to pay $20 a dozen for your handkerchiefs? Don't you think that was a good deal of money to blow in?

"How does the idea of a 'corn banquet' strike you, anyhow?" inquired the goose, coldly sarcastic. "A corn banquet fills the bill," clucked the old hen, pecking away with all her might.

Governess—You see, my dear, the Antipodes live on the other side of the earth, and they only go to bed when we are getting up. Little Emma—Then, fraulein, I suppose my brother Fritz, the student, is an Antipode, eh?

Guest, in Arizona restaurant—How's this? Twenty-five cents for that dish? It's marked ten cents on the bill of fare. Waiter—Yes, sir. That's for tomaytoes. You asked for tomahtoes. When you want style and luxury at this eatin'-house you pay for it. See?

"Now," said the prosecuting attorney, "I think about twenty years would fit your client's case." "Twenty years!" echoed the lawyer. "Why, I'd rather have him sentenced for life." "Why?" "Because his health is so bad he couldn't live fifteen years and if he did he'd still be five years ahead."

THE Prison Mirror, the neatly printed little paper gotten up by the inmates of the Stillwater penitentiary, was seven years old the other week, and one of the brightest papers that come to our table. It is also a power for good and placed in the hands of the rising generation is of more practical benefit to them than all the tracts and Sunday school papers in existence, containing as it does sensible, sound and highly proper articles and leaves of experience from those who have "been through the mill."

A NEW YORK man is in jail charged with stealing cannon balls. He probably was about half shot when he did it.

LATEST attempts at suicide in Chicago in one day, six of them successful, indicate at first sight that the epidemic of self-destruction reported from Europe has spread to this country. In London and Paris boys of 15 and 18, happily situated and with nothing to tempt them to suicide have been making way with themselves, and the papers are filled with arguments for the moral right and sometimes duty of self-destruction. But in Chicago most of the suicides are traceable to causes which do away with the theory of a moral epidemic. Most of those who have taken their own lives have been men or women despondent from ill-health, lack of employment or other depressing circumstances. It is noticeable, too, that a majority of the victims were of foreign birth. The American temperament is hopeful and does not yield to discouragement readily, or if it does it quickly recovers. There may be an unusually large percentage of suicides while the financial distress continues, but with a return of confidence and the resumption of business men will look on the brighter side of things. There is nothing in the atmosphere of this country to encourage the formation of suicide clubs and similar gruesome organizations such as flourish in the morbid and unhealthy civilization of Paris and London. The American faces death as bravely as any man, but he does not court it, nor does he invoke it as a cure for evils that can be overcome by the exercise of courage and perseverance—the two distinctively American qualities.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

AN EXTINCT FISH.

It Seems to Have Been Exterminated by Sudden Cold in 1882.

The National museum has issued an extract from its report for 1888-89 relating to animals recently extinct or threatened with extermination, as represented in the collections of the United States national museum, says Forest and Stream. Mr. F. A. Lucas is the author of this very interesting illustrated paper. He treats of the West Indian seal, the California sea elephant, the walruses, the European bison, the Arctic sea cow, the mamo or Pacific sickle bill, the California vulture, the dodo and the solitaire, the Labrador duck, the great auk, Pallas' cormorant, the Galapagos and Mascarene tortoises and the tile-fish. Nearly all of these animals are figured, the last in colors.

The tile-fish was discovered in 1879 by the late Captain William H. Kirby of Gloucester, Mass., while fishing for cod about eighty miles south by east of No Man's Land. Late in the same year the fish was described by Drs. Goode and Bean. The tile-fish, on account of its large size, great beauty, abundance, edible qualities and activity in taking the hook, soon came to the notice of people in Boston, New York and other Eastern cities. The newspapers wrote it up, Forest and Stream illustrated it, epicures passed favorable judgment upon its flesh; it was supposed that a new and highly important fish had been permanently added to our store.

The fish commission steamer, Fish Hawk, on one occasion took seventy-three tile-fish, weighing 511 pounds, and presenting masses of lemon yellow, brown, black and white, such as may be seldom equaled on a vessel's deck.

The tile-fish is one of the most remarkable among fishes in having a large, soft (or adipose) fin on the top of its head behind the eyes. Mr. Lucas tells the story of its sudden and total disappearance early in 1882, as detailed in the "History of the Tile-fish" by Captain J. W. Collins. Vessels arriving in Philadelphia, New York and Boston in the months of March and April reported having passed large numbers of dead fish covering a water area of many square miles.

The Navarino sailed "for no less than 150 miles through waters dotted as far as the eye could reach with dying fishes" and most of these victims were tile-fish. The explanation of this wholesale destruction of life, as furnished by Professor Verrill, is connected with a sudden lowering of temperature of the belt of water inhabited by the fish by encroachment upon it of the Arctic current on the one hand and the cold sea depths on the other. Since the fatality noted, the tile-fish has not once been taken in its former haunts, although systematic and diligent search was made for it; neither has the fish appeared elsewhere as far as we know. The information contained in the article of Mr. Lucas cannot fail to prove interesting to all lovers of nature.

TALKING ABOUT SPORT.

He Has Made a Pretty Big Haul as a Rat Catcher.

"Talking about sport," observed the man in the mackintosh, "I had the luck once to catch fifteen full-grown rats all at the same time."

"I caught a fish once," said the man with the green goggles on, "that measured—"

"Never mind what it measured," interrupted the other. "You can tell your fish story after I get done. The curious thing about those rats was that I caught them in an old cistern."

"Did you set an old cistern out somewhere so they could run into it?" inquired the man who had his feet on the table.

"It doesn't make any difference how the cistern got there. The main fact is that I caught those fifteen rats in it without any bait and without making any special preparation whatever for catching rats."

"How did you do it?"

"I pumped the water out and found them at the bottom."

"Did—you rescue them?" asked the man in the slouch hat, after a painful silence.

"No, no," said the man in the mackintosh, reflectively. "You could hardly call it a rescue. I was too late. They had previously died."

Attracted the Cobras

It is a common belief in India that if a cobra is killed and the remains are left in a bungalow, others of the species will be attracted to the spot. About nine months ago Colonel Elderton killed a very large cobra in the compound of his bungalow at Dinapore, and had its skin stuffed and set up by a native mochee. Since then the compound has been infested with these snakes, and no less than eight full-grown cobras, measuring from four feet eight inches to five feet four inches, have been killed there, one of which was sitting up, with its hood extended, contemplating the house where the remains of its preserved friend were. It is a curious fact that every snake when found was making in the direction of the bungalow, and most of them showed fight when tackled. No cobras have been seen in other parts of the station.

The Safest Way to Do It.

Binks—Well, sir, I gave it to that man straight, now, I can tell you. He is twice as big as I am, too, but I told him exactly what I thought of his rascally conduct, right to his face, and I called him all the mean names in the dictionary.

Minks—And didn't he try to hit you, Binks?

Binks—No, sir he didn't. And when he tried to answer back I just hung the telephone up without a word and walked away.

OUR NEW DEPARTURE.

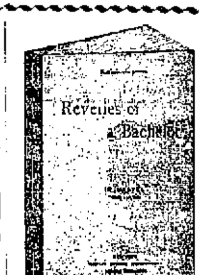

Remarkable Distribution

—OF—

STANDARD BOOKS !

At Nominal Prices,

And that can only be made possible by our co-operation for the benefit of the "Sentinel" Readers.

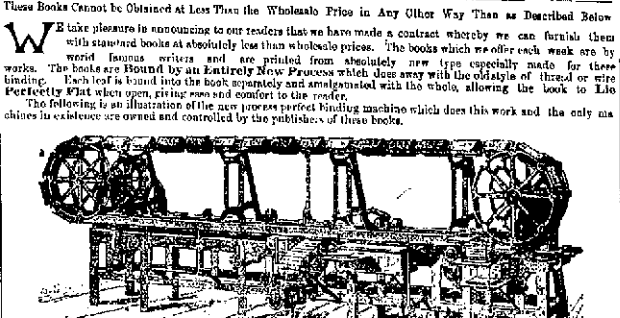

BOOKS LIKE THE ABOVE.

These Books Cannot be Obtained at Less Than the Wholesale Price in Any Other Way Than as Described Below

WE take pleasure in announcing to our readers that we have made a contract whereby we can furnish them with standard books at absolutely less than wholesale prices. The books which we offer each week are by world famous writers and are printed from absolutely new type especially made for these works. The books are Bound by an Entirely New Process which does away with the old style of thread or wire binding. Each leaf is bound into the book separately and amalgamated with the whole, allowing the book to Lie Perfectly Flat when open, giving ease and comfort to the reader.

The following is an illustration of the new process perfect binding machine which does this work and the only machines in existence are owned and controlled by the publishers of these books.

This machine not only binds books without thread or wire but puts a cover on each book. It takes loose parts of the book and delivers the complete work bound at a rate of 1500 an hour.

Each week we will announce a new book in the following space. If you do not care for the work mentioned, save your coupons as we will be sure to announce books which you will not fail to order. We change date each issue.

No. 19. PREMIUM LIBRARY! "DREAMS." BY OLIVE SCHREINER. PRICE 25c. Our price to sender of 3 coupons 10c Post Paid.

The convention of the national association of Letter Carriers convenes today (Sept. 19) in Kansas City, Mo. The Post Master General has promised to deliver an address if it is possible for him to be absent from his official duties. He favors an amendment of the Civil Service Law so that every letter carrier will have a chance to answer charges against him before being removed.

We give every one a chance to make charges against us if any goods we sell are not satisfactory. Bring them back if they do not suit and your money will be refunded.

NEW IDEAS IN SCHOOL CLOTHING

While the boys have been enjoying vacation we have been lying awake o'nights thinking out new fashions for them. We have done wonders in the past in improving the character of Boy's Attire. This season we have performed miracles. Nothing in Fort Wayne can equal our exquisite styles, and the variety is overwhelming. The combined efforts of competition may strain and strive, but still fall short in reaching our standard in this department nor has resistance to hard wear been overlooked. Strength and style, perfection and originality distinguish every garment.

AUTUMN STYLES NOW READY.

The light colored suitings are still going at cost and below and we'll be glad to show you these, as they are truly BARGAINS.
